I'd only vote @Conservatives again under the following conditions:

Boris & Hancock gone ✅

Entire Cabinet gone ✅

Formal recognition & apology from the Party for the damage they've caused ✅

A manifesto pledge for a Bill of Rights to protect us from future authoritarians ✅

What is your proposal, exactly? That we deny vaccinations to UK citizens in favour of making them available to the citizens of other countries? Is that your actual suggestion?

13 5 62

Femi @Femi_Sorry 9 Std

My proposal?
Once we've vaccinated the +55s & clinically vulnerable 55s.
It's less crucial to vaccinate all of the under 55s *IF*IF* F*IF*IF* masks, testing & distancing are maintained with strangers
Vaccinating the vulnerable in poorer countries becomes a larger priority

A statement on the shocking scenes at Napier barracks

The damage and destruction at Napier barracks is not only appalling but deeply offensive to the taxpayers of this country who are providing this accommodation while asylum claims are being processed.

This type of action will not be tolerated and the Home Office will support the police to take robust action against those vandalising property, threatening staff and putting lives at risk

This site has previously accommodated our brave soldiers and army personnel – it is an insult to say that it is not good enough for these individuals. I am fixing our broken asylum system, and will be bringing forward legislation this year to deliver on that commitment

The EU is so obviously such an appalling organisation that I can't even be bothered to comment on the #AstraZeneca vaccine blockade.

@vonderleyen is the perfect figurehead for them. Irrational, hypocritical, untrustworthy. Good riddance.

When you read the statement from the @EU_Commission it's clear they haven't 'changed their mind'. All they're doing is waiting for the UK to use Ireland & NI as a transit route for vaccines then point at it & say 'you're abusing the agreement' & trigger Article 16 at that point.

European Commission
Commission européenne

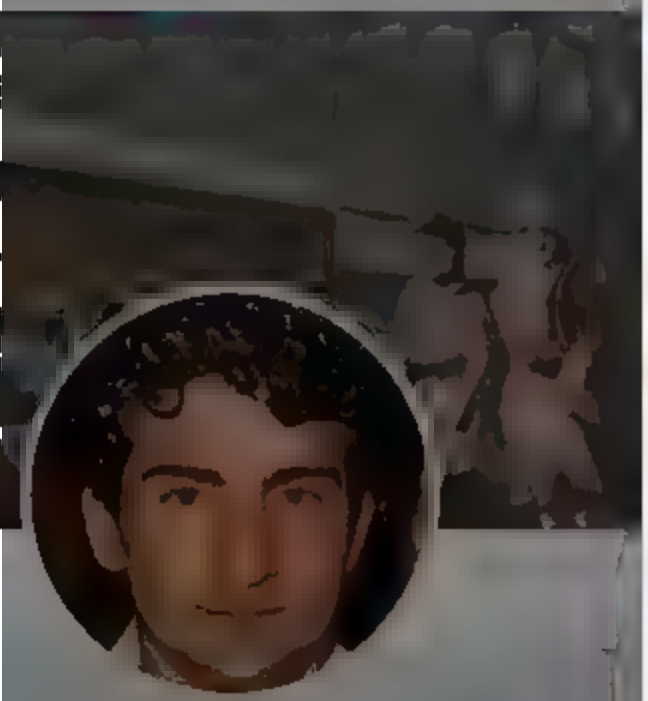
Press Release – Communiqué de presse

Commission statement on the vaccine export authorisation scheme

To tackle the current lack of transparency of vaccine exports outside the EU, the Commission is putting in place a measure requiring that such exports are subject to an authorisation by Member States.

In the process of finalisation of this measure, the Commission will ensure that the Ireland / Northern Ireland Protocol is unaffected. The Commission is not triggering the safeguard clause.

Should transits of vaccines and active substances toward third countries be abused to circumvent the effects of the authorisation system, the EU will consider using all the instruments at its disposal.



In the process of finalising the document, the Commission will also be fine-tuning the decision-making process under the implementing regulation.

The final version of the implementing regulation will be published following its adoption tomorrow.

How do you shield people entirely from a transmittable virus?

Zeheart Aznable @Zeheart_Aznable 2 Std

By giving them the funds and means to not need to put themselves at risk by going out and exposing themselves to the virus, obviously

Haitch7 HANDS FACE SPACE @Haitch7 6 Min

Genuinely no idea how people could exist entirely isolated from others though. Don't they have family living with them? Don't they need to eat or have medical care? There's no way they can shield 100% away from this virus.

Zeheart Aznable @Zeheart_Aznable 1 Min

Sigh

Targeted furlough for vulnerable & those living with vulnerable, proper food parcels or set up a support group that will go out and do your weekly shop for you and drop it off same as delivery would, useful for the older ones.

Medication can also be delivered

It's not hindsight when so many people were saying it at the time... In fact almost the entire rationale for the first lockdown was to 'allow the NHS to boost capacity' 😂😂😂

The Govt has a dilemma. If 42% of ethnic minorities inc 72% of the black community are opposed to having the vaccine how will they progress unlocking?

At high levels of non takers the NHS would remain under pressure & all other cases incl cancer will still be left untreated

The answer is that they need to allow people to manage their own health risk. There has been good take up amongst over 75s. That's the end of it now.

That's up to them

If we didn't hit bed capacity during the winter 'spike' (apparently it was a staff issue) then we are going to be nowhere near it in future considering a large chunk of the over 75s have now been vaccinated.

Why are the numbers of infect ons dropping rapidly then?

Newton Peter Clarke

Antwort an @Los ng Streak42 @BiondeKb*

1. Nobody knows the number of infections. The only data available is the number of positive results from PCR tests. The data is meaningless.

2. If infections are coming down it's because almost every viral outbreak in the history of man has followed a natural bell curve.

We stand against d scrimination

We're working hard to make innocent as inclusive as possible.

Over the years we've followed a lot of people on here and from time to time we've unfollowed some too. The other day we unfollowed a Twitter account because content on their feed about trans people wasn't in line with our values of inclusivity and respect. This made some people on Twitter quite cross.

We've still got work to do, but we believe that everyone should be protected from discrimination. We will continue to make sure that our social media channels remain fair and inclusive. It's on all of us to make sure everyone can live happy, free lives and we will keep working towards a world where that's a reality.

Explain why you believe lock downs don't work. No evidence to suggest so. Are pictures all you have - if so it proves you have no idea why you say these things. Surely you can articulate reasons for what you say.

No lockdowns were imposed on 6 December and I have no idea what that graph is or where you've got it from

But just to be clear, the evidence you're putting forward is your personal analysis of a 'cases' data graph?

5th February 2021

Dear Michael and Matt

As you are aware, the Public Administration and Constitutional Affairs Committee took evidence from the Paymaster General and the Minister for Care yesterday with the hope of finalising our inquiry into Transparency and Accountability of Data in relation to the Covid-19 pandemic. When making arrangements for the meeting, the clerks had conveyed the Committee's request to see the Cabinet Ministers, but you each delegated to a junior minister within your department.

Unfortunately, the ministers who attended were not able to answer the Committee's questions in a number of areas. In this inquiry we have heard evidence about the behaviour of decision makers, and in calling the Government ministers, we had hoped to have definitive answers to the evidence heard. However, because the ministers we saw were not involved, they could not respond. The Paymaster General noted that she had "seen decisions taken" and Helen Whately responded on a couple of occasions that our questions were outside her remit.

You do realise nobody uses single day reporting but instead 7-day moving average right? That's because there are delays in reporting, particularly over weekends, which causes spikes.

Look at the data. Cases plateaued in low 20ks on around 26 October.

It's complicated, I know.

The only way we end up with a genuinely 'conservative' government is by destroying the current @Conservatives party. Yes, that might mean things get worse before they get better. Yes, it might even mean we endure a Labour government for a while. But it's the only real hope.

Mayor of London (gov.uk/coronavirus) @MayorofLondon 10 Min

COVID cases may be going down in London but our NHS is still under extreme pressure. With nearly 5,000 Londoners in hospital battling this virus, we must continue to stick to the rules

Do your part stay at home.

This is a conservative government, if people want it to be more right wing they need to join the party and get more involved and push it in the right direction But there is an alternative, its called labour and that would be far worse. So we must all back the conservatives

Your Government just made foreign holidays exclusively an activity for the wealthy

£1,750 'hotel' quarantine p/p for return from Red List country.

£210 p/p from other countries which covers 2 PCR tests. That would add £840 to a holiday for a family of 4.

Erm even worse than that. I understand that high value travellers do not even have to quarantine or follow the other rules at all. It's a completely outrageous 2 tier system.

Incorrect. Foreign holidays are often more affordable than UK equivalents.

But I don't suppose any of this is an issue for a 'Telecoms & Energy Consultant'. I think they call that ivory tower thinking. But well done for trying.

Your Government just made foreign holidays exclusively an activity for the wealthy

£1,750 'hotel' quarantine p/p for return from Red List country.

£210 p/p from other countries which covers 2 PCR tests. That would add £840 to a holiday for a family of 4.

I bang on about narrative a lot. But this is insane now. Where did anyone get the idea Grant Shapps and Boris were going to stand up today and say "OK folks. It's over. Start booking your holidays". It's ridiculous. They're not saying summer's cancelled. They're saying wait.

Your Government has removed a number of your rights set out in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

They have done this by using 'emergency powers'.

It's important to note that there's no provision in the declaration for suspension of rights - in fact, the opposite.

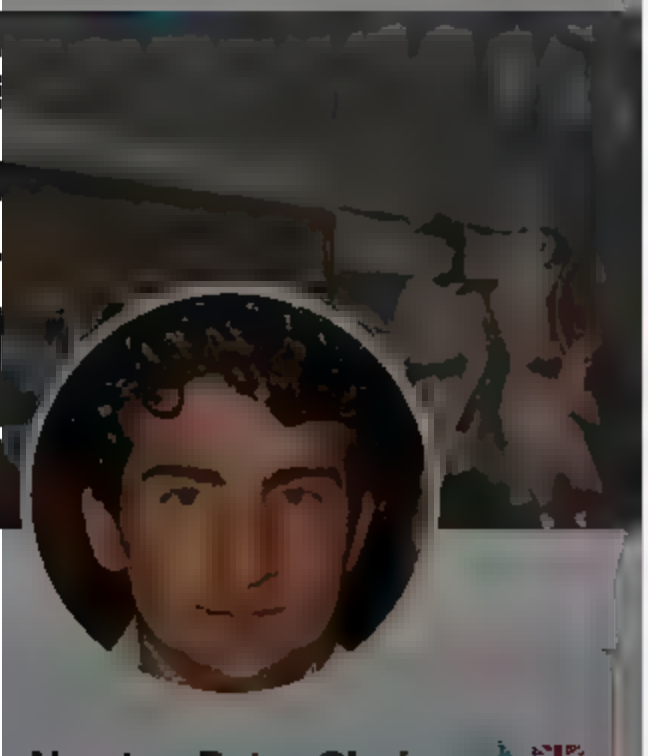
Your attempts at emotionalising the issue are best left in the school playground.



The question of whether Covid has led to the death of an already extremely ill person is relevant as it would potentially be the case that any viral infection would have killed them, even a cold.

Still no figures forthcoming

The huge excess mortality in multiple countries proves that you are mistaken or lying or deluded. Anyone who doesn't care that thousands of people have suffered and died in the UK, largely unnecessarily, is emotionally stunted MO.

What people might not realise is that dogs are incredibly easy to subdue. You might take a bite but as soon as you get it in a bear hug from behind it's over.

What are the side affects of the yearly flu vaccine? or did you forget that there's new one every year?

Im not comparing the flu to the covid, as they are quite different. But there is literally a new flue vaccine every year

Incorrect. The flu vaccine, which has been around for around 70 years, is slightly altered each year to recognise the particular characteristics of dominant mutations.

At what stage do we start referring to lockdown advocates as 'collaborators'?

Maybe at the same time as we start referring to Covid deniers and anti-vaxers as killers.

Not sure who you're referring to there... it seems to me the vast majority of people who consider lockdowns to be abhorrent both acknowledge Covid exists and have received multiple vaccines throughout their lives (they just aren't keen on an experimental vaccine).

Are you referring to people who are
a. physically dead,
b. people who couldn t care less, or
c. people who are dead to self, acc. to Galatians 2:20-21?

Newton Peter Clarke @NewtonC arkeJK 23 Std

A. The other two can be remedied

Kate Chamberlayne @KateChamberlay2 23 Std

I wouldn't say C needs a remedy. It IS the remedy to everything, in my personal opinion. But I know few would agree with me.

Newton Peter Clarke @NewtonC arkeJK 23 Std

Being dead to self does require a remedy. You are saying the remedy is Jesus and that he is also the remedy for things.

Kate Chamberlayne @KateChamberlay2 5 Min

No. It means that if a person is 'in Christ', then they are identified in every way with Him. Because Jesus died and rose again, His follower is also 'dead' to the world, inc his own desires, and has been given a new 'overcoming' life - the Life which is Jesus.

Apologies, I misread your original tweet. Yes, Union with Christ means a sharing in all that is his: his death, resurrection, inheritance.

We're working hard to make innocent as inclusive as possible.

Over the years we've followed a lot of people on here and from time to time we've unfollowed some too. The other day we unfollowed a Twitter account because content on their feed about trans people wasn't in line with our values of inclusivity and respect. This made some people on Twitter quite cross.

We've still got work to do, but we believe that everyone should be protected from discrimination. We will continue to make sure that our social media channels remain fair and inclusive. It's on all of us to make sure everyone can live happy, free lives and we will keep working towards a world where that's a reality.

During this pandemic the vast majority of UK citizens have sacrificed many freedoms to protect our elderly and vulnerable. This selfless WW2 spirit should be applauded.

Sadly, a few selfish rule breakers and nay sayers have sided with the enemy and prolonged our struggle.

The intense focus on locking down an entire population rather than specifically caring for and protecting the clinically vulnerable (if they want it) is criminally negligent. The inquiry will show that.

Face masks and social distancing will not be needed after vulnerable groups are vaccinated!

All Covid restrictions should be lifted immediately. Those lobbying for longer restrictions are either mad, or making money from it.

Social distancing forever! It's made public transport bearable again. There's no phoney French / air kiss greetings. No one with low personal hygiene sweating on you in the gym or outdoors. No one up on your grill when queuing. what's not to love? A nod is as good as a shake

If the 'vaccine' is effective then why would a vaccinated person care whether the person next to them is vaccinated or not? 🤷

I think I'm leaning towards the idea that the health passports (to allow you access to shops, services etc) is a cynical attempt by the government to scare you into having the 'vaccine'. I can't see how they can implement it - it'd be completely unworkable.

Define lockdown. Sweden has a lot of measures in place

Antwort an @jonaskalberg
Sweden had next to no restrictions in place for the 1st bell curve and introduced some during the 2nd such as:
• 8 people indoors.
• No alcohol sales in bars after 8pm.
• Upper secondary schools home learning.
• Masks on public transport 'recommended'.
That's not lockdown.

My hunch is the road he'll take us on will be a meandering tour down Authoritarianism Avenue, Coercion Causeway, & Discrimination Drive with no guarantee of normality at the end.

Can anyone think of a period of modern history when UK and the rest of the world were faced with a serious pandemic

Which there is no obvious cure and a serious risk of mutation and a certain element of the population are in denial

Don't think it was in the same league as COVID-19, probably a fair comparison would be the plague of the Middle Ages

We might have a vaccine, but it's far from perfect and the danger of mutation is enormous. There is no room for complacency in any shape or form

You mean you're looking for people to advance our digital oppression? Digital identities, permits to access services, digital currency. Anyone who takes these jobs is constructing the frame for their own prison.

By ‘vaccine passports’ you are referring to people carrying around permits to grant access to services, which is not only anathema in a free society but also any business that tries to implement it will suffer. The markets will sort it out.

Not the vaccine, the 'certificate', as you refer to it as. I'm sure you can read your own tweets.

To d honest, I'm no longer following what you're saying. You seem to be caught between valuing individual choice and wanting to limit individual choice. More thought required.

Don't know what you are wrong about.
It's a personal choice and if I see a establishment that asks for a certificate, then I will be going into it.

Newton Peter Clarke @NewtonClarkeJK 6 min

You are positively schizophrenic. One minute it's something that must be imposed, then it's a personal choice, then back to imposed, then a personal choice again.

You go wherever you want, Kev. That's your free choice. If only you would afford others the same courtesy.

Take that as a no then.

Almost every viral outbreak in the history of man has followed a natural bell curve. Look it up. Funny how 'no lockdown' Sweden achieved exactly the same (slightly better actually). No magic involved. Just the nature of viral outbreaks.

I'm pro vaccine.
I'm arguing against creating a society where papers need to be shown 5/6 times a day to live.
It's absurd and not needed
The vaccine uptake is above target and will most likely stay above.

You're pushing something that's harmful

1 1 109

Kevin Pietersen @KP24 3 Std
A vaccine passport isn't harmful. It's happening.
It'll still be your choice to have the vaccine or not

Like trying to travel in Africa. You have to have yellow fever or you ain't getting into a country.

Not if the Government meddles, like they did with smoking in pubs.
Smoking pubs, fitted with aircurtains, filtration and ventilation, would have taken 70% plus of all business
So don't bank on the market.

This from @ONS data is encouraging.

The plan is working. Infection rates are falling. But we aren't there yet.

As we roll out the vaccine, we must continue to suppress this virus.

Israel hospitals is falling fast. This effect is particularly strong after the second dose of the vaccine. Lesson for others: vaccinate your populations ASAP to lower the impact of the pandemic: @jburnmurdoch

I hate the Tories more than I love Labour so I'd vote for any progressive party to get the Tories out tbh, I'd vote Labour in MK or Lib Dem in tedd ngton, socialism is the longterm goal but removing these bastards is the immediate priority

This should be the reasoning for any right thinking person. There s a progressive majority in this country & we must work together to remove the #Tories #Socialism is the aim but not enough people will vote for that yet.

Are we supposed to be grateful, having been stripped on fundamenta rights on pain of prosecution to now be for a owed to meet someone n our own gardens or a park? I wouldn t say that was a good Friday. I'd say it was a continuation of the same old devastating scanda.

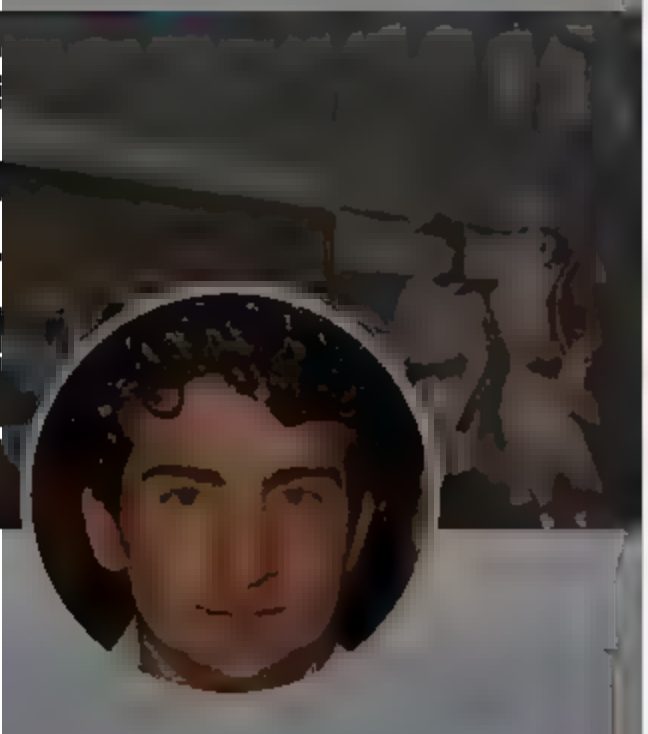
You must have proof of a negative coronavirus (COVID-19) test to travel to England.

You must take a test even if:

- you're a UK citizen
- you've already had the COVID-19 vaccine

You must take the test in the 3 days before the service on which you will arrive in England departs.



For example, if you travel directly to England on Friday, you must take the test on the Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday.

But even if you did attach any significance to 'cases' data, Sweden is also on a downward trajectory.

The whole idea of Lockdown is to stop the TRANSMISSION of the virus
Bringing down the infection rate ultimately means you lower the death rate

If you look at the data @UKCovid19Stats that is exactly what is happening.

It's meaningless because it's so unreliable & in no way accurate.

1. You can only detect the 'cases' you test for.
2. The FPR for the PCR is ludicrously high.
3. Every country has different test rates so can't be compared.

Seriously, we've been doing this for a year. Catch up.

Yep. They went 9 months with next to no restrictions and then introduced a few at the height of the respiratory virus season, including:

- Bars stop serving alcohol after 8pm.
- Six people mix indoors.
- Masks 'recommended'.

That is not lockdown.

I know this lockdown has been really tough, especially after so many months of difficulty. But we must all remember why we're doing this: to save lives, help our NHS and to beat this virus – for good.

We will not tolerate disorder on this scale in the UK. The authorities will put down such violence swiftly, and those responsible severely punished. Remember people were put in prison for looting a bottle of water during the 2011 riots.

Are vaccines the magic bullet to end covid? Some quite strong findings coming from PHE later on this I hear. With efficacy against illness and death at 90%+ and refuseniks expected to be at 30%+ down the age scale, that leaves a big chunk of the population unprotected permanently.

Locking down an entire population is not only insane, but also an extremely poor way of protecting the most vulnerable. That will come out in the inquiry.

The word ‘cautious’ has been thrown around today.

• Quarantining int’l arrivals in Feb 2020 would’ve been cautious.

• Public health info for people to manage their risk would’ve been cautious.

• Oppressing an entire population for 18months is lunacy.

This cautious easing of the lockdown, guided by the data, will help us get back to normal.

We were told that shielding vulnerable was impossible and that lockdown which should be used only as a last resort was necessary

Now that most of the vulnerable have had first vax, and vax is available to all carers, why is it still impossible to shield the vulnerable?

People will always disagree. The skill is backing the right horse, based on evidence. Johnson backed Neil Ferguson and his Imperial College colleagues Below is his widely known track record on modelling. and yet Johnson still backed him. That is extreme stupidity

Vaccine passports are discussed all over Europe & beyond. Even if 🇬🇧 decides against them, there will still be unwelcome restrictions for vaccine-passportless Brits who plan to visit/vacation in other countries. So, sooner or later one would have to comply.

Just has this from my daughters school

23 February 2021

Dear Parent/Carer

We are looking forward to seeing the students back in school. Remote learning has been excellent, and whilst it has helped maintain the development of knowledge and skills for the students it is no substitute for having them here in school with us.

The first stage of our movement to normality involves all students in secondary school being tested three times using the lateral flow test system as they return to school. Since January we have been running lateral flow tests for the students who have been in school. This has provided us with a detailed understanding of the numbers of students we can test over a day. This data will be used to help us plan how we will test all 1700 students three times with the staffing we have.

Once students have been tested in school three times, there is an expectation that students will then test at home twice a week with kits provided by the school.

Students will be expected to wear masks in all communal indoor areas, including classrooms. If your son/daughter does not have to wear a mask for medical reasons, please inform their Head of Year.

We will communicate with you early next week, outlining how we will start to return students to school. We want to see as many students back into school as quickly and safely as possible.

Yours sincerely

Dear Parent/Carer

We are looking forward to seeing the students back in school. Remote learning has been excellent, and whilst it has helped maintain the development of knowledge and skills for the students it is no substitute for having them here in school with us.

The first stage of the movement to normality involves all students in secondary school being tested three times using the lateral flow test system as they return to school. Since January we have been running lateral flow tests for the students who have been in school. This has provided us with a detailed understanding of the numbers of students we can test over a day. This data will be used to help us plan how we will test all 1700 students three times with the staffing we have.

Once students have been tested in school three times, there is an expectation that students will then test at home twice a week with kits provided by the school.

Students will be expected to wear masks in all communal indoor areas, including classrooms. If your son/daughter does not have to wear a mask for medical reasons, please inform their Head of Year.

We will communicate with you early next week, outlining how we will start to return students to school. We want to see as many students back into school as quickly and safely as possible.

Yours sincerely

This & most of his lockdown speeches have nothing to do with Conservatism & everything to do with humanity & common sense. He has both in spades. Interesting he talked about ethics. I've been wondering whether the govt consulted any Ethicists on any of this. I highly doubt it.

It's a great pity that the 130 000 who've died in the UK weren't comprised solely of anti-maskers and anti-vaxxers. Unfortunately, the majority who died were sick and elderly, while the virus was spread by the selfish and stupid.

To all vaccine advocates...

There's a HUGE difference between wanting to convince friends, relatives, countrymen to have the #vaccine & supporting the possibility of a permit system that would shut them out of aspects of society in order to coerce them into it. That is inhumane.

So how does that work when we have to have Jabs if we want to holiday in various parts of the world? Surely we are coerced into having those if we want to go to a particular country
As for being called a "Nazi" I find that very offensive and will take appropriate action.

You're offended by being called a nazi for supporting prejudice & discrimination & threatening to take appropriate action? What happened to 'if they call the master of the house beelzebub' & 'turn the other cheek & 'blessed are you when men shall call you all manner of evil'?

Two separate issues here:

1. Whether or not you think people should have the vaccine.

2. Whether or not we're going to live in a society where we need to show documentation and disclose medical info on a daily basis.

The second is the far bigger issue.

I wouldn't say there are "good reasons" why vaccines normally take so long Most of the reasons are due to red tape... data takes a long time to collect and analyse. submit, it can take months of being with the FDA or similar org before anyone even begins to review it.

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @MissaMHx · 2 min

In this case, the data was reviewed as it came in in order to make those decisions with incredible speed. The fact there were outbreaks everywhere and extremely high infection levels meant recruiting trial participants was very fast, and reaching the minimum number of infections

Needed to see an impact happened extremely rapidly With lots of other infections you may need to run each phase of the trial for years before you have enough infections to establish if the vaccine works. Being in the middle of massive outbreaks has really sped this up.

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @MissaMHx · 1 min

We also had the benefit of a LOT of work being done on other coronavirus vaccines meaning we weren't starting from scratch MERS and SARS vaccines were in the works. And of course, money. Companies and universities were given a bottomless pit of money to throw at this problem.

So all of that together explains why this happened so quickly. Safety and efficacy have never been sacrificed. Corners haven't been cut, at all. And now millions have been vaccinated and the safety/efficacy profiles of all the approved vaccines are excellent.

Of course, we don't know but there isn't any biological reason to suspect there WILL be long term side effects. The vaccine is cleared from the body in days to weeks, after this point the odds of it having an adverse impact are virtually zero.

1. I do not accept that reasoning for the mRNA vaccines.

2. I am more willing to accept it for the Oxford vaccine, but it's still simply the case that we only have months worth of data & it'd be prudent to wait for phase three of trials to finish. That is a reasonable position.

3. Following the swine flu Pandemrix vaccine in 2010 it took the children months to develop symptoms of narcolepsy. I think Covid vaccine trials started in June? It is all too soon for me.

Simon is such a simp that he doesn't know what an anti-vaxxer is and can't understand why somebody would have concerns over receiving a vaccine with just 7 months of data and hasn't completed phase three of trials.

The real divide is between authoritarians and libertarians.

1 I do not accept that reasoning for the mRNA vaccines.

2 I am more w ing to accept t for the Oxford vaccine. but it's still simply the case that we only have months worth of data & it'd be prudent to wait for phase three of trials to f nish. That is a reasonable position

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @M ssaMHx 7 min

1) why not? The mechanism is the same. The mRNA does not persist in your body

2) the data from phase III AZ vaccine has been submitted to lancet and is in the pre-print stage.

3) symptoms arose 1-2 months after vaccination and were exceedingly rare

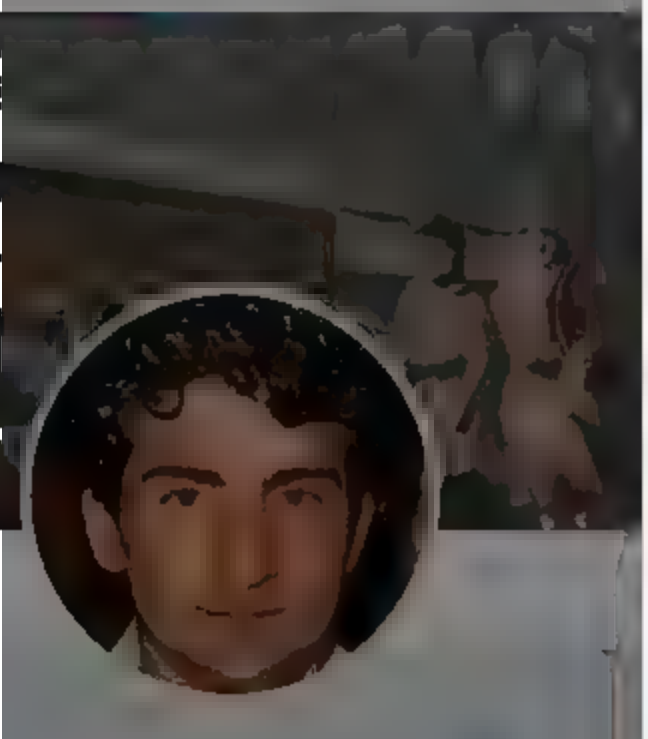
1. That is not my understanding, and certainly not the understanding of a family member of mine who is an accomplished immunologist.

2. Observations of trial participants are ongoing.



3. There is still only months of data for a vaccine I don't need. It is prudent to wait.

I don't doubt the vaccine is good and I'm in no way antivax. I'm young and healthy so don't feel the need to rush to get it. My issue is with the passports.

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @MissaMHx 9 Min
I mean, I don't really understand the hesitation with vaccine passports or something similar (rapid testing before flying or going to the pub?). The only goal with that is to ensure the safety of you and everyone around you. Lots of countries require vaccines for entry.

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @MissaMHx 8 Min
I don't see this at all as an infringement on rights or anything intended to be sinister. The measures being considered are purely for public health and the safety of everyone. So for that reason I absolutely support it!

And those people shouldn't be allowed to go to the theatre? Or will they have to prove a medical exemption?

Ultimately covid is around for a generation and with mutations probably forever We need to learn to live with it as a new cause of death.

Dr. Melissa Marie (allegedly) @MissaMHx 9 min

Medical exemption I would think.

There's also the fact that no vaccine is 100% effective. They're very very good, but not perfect. So you might still be putting people at risk. There's also children - none of these vaccines are licensed in children, even those at high risk.

Phillip Sterling @PhilSterling 6 min

What about the 15% the vaccine doesn't work for? Do they keep getting jabs? Maybe play vaccine bingo until one catches? Or are they to be cast aside or exempted too?

You can see how many difficult questions a passport raises

Not quite the same. 'Views' are not the issue.

'Pro-vaxxers' aren't looking to impose a 'view'. They are looking to impose a system which would exclude people who don't share their view from society.

If my view were imposed everyone would just leave everyone else alone.

If t was just the 'right th ng to do for them' then they wouldn't be trying to nterfere n everyone else's choices, would they.

Ian Lee @Rudyard_ad 34m

But you don t have to have the vaccine or the assoc ated passport if you do not want to I run a coffee shop and I wil be requiring customers who want to sit nside to show me their vaccine passport. Please feel free to be a customer elsewhere!

Newton Peter Clarke @NewtonC arkeJK 28m

1 You' soon learn that the coffee shop down the road has a competitive advantage Not only because peop e who aren't vaccinated won't visit, but if there is a group of people and one isn't vaccinated they won't visit either

2 You' also probably get your ass sued.

Ian Lee @Rudyard_ad 7m

I doubt it. I wil be taking full legal advice before implement ng th s policy and people are MORE than welcome to drink elsewhere It s a free country after al !

That's utter nonsense. Some are, most aren't. Like non-vax, some (like you) are seeking to criticise those who are taking it, but most aren't.

I'm refusing it 100% but I won't criticise those who are taking it. It's called 'freedom of choice' and used to be popular once.

Then you misunderstand my position. If you could point out where I've criticised those who are taking the vax, that would be great.

As far as I can see I'm specifically talking to those who want to exclude others from society based on health choices. That's a different issue.

I'm not interested in any of that. People can inject whatever they want into their own bodies. What I am not happy with is a group of people advocating the exclusion of another group of people from society.

He totally did, though. Offering proper and substantial shielding assistance to those households, which make up around 30%, would have been far less expensive and more effective. Of course, the actual figure is far lower because many of those households have 'granny flats'.

Our lockdown is not strict. It is mostly based on rules. Not police enforced laws, rigidly enforced. Monitoring of the public is non existant. We should have introduced Attestation Forms to state why you have left your home, work/buy food etc. Spot checks by police/military.

How many unvaccinated will book a holiday and hope they pass the test on the day of the flight?

Will they get holiday health insurance without a jab?

It's a bait and switch to push vaccine passports "only" being necessary for international travel by getting everyone upset, then seeming to back down. The sheep will fall for it, agree it's necessary to get on a plane, and that's when the remit will change back to domestic use.

Government don't want them, its large venues and other countries. So if you don't want to go to them don't get vaccinated, simple.

Hotel quarantine as standard won't happen. They've already put into place the procedure. Pay £200 and have two tests whilst in isolation at home. That's it. Obviously I think that's BS but a lot of people who now work from home anyway will find it fairly straightforward.

(16/22) A big problem has been testing. In the early days of the pandemic, it was hard to for children to get tested because they didn't meet testing criteria. They still might not if they have atypical symptoms.

In some countries, they're still not tested unless seriously ill.

We have a route out & we can gradually replace the protection from restrictions with protection from the vaccine.

Over 19 MILLION people, 35.4% of all adults across the UK, have now had a life-saving jab

We're not there yet & we must all remain vigilant

This is abhorrant. I knew Shamima, I was a teacher in her school. She was a child who was effectively groomed. She is a British citizen and it is shocking that citizenship can be so easily stripped away. She deserves our pity and our help, not our scorn.

Comparing being (allegedly) asked to take a vaccine after a worldwide pandemic to living and dying under the nazi regime/holocaust is way over exaggerating and truly absurd

My argument to that therefore is there is little risk to me, m 50 and slim and healthy, know an 85 year old that had t, only mild symptoms. It has an over 99% recovery, why are we being so terrified when n 2000 we had 30,000 die of flu, d dn't even get a mention

Bob Swanage @BobSwanage 7 t

68 2 million population. 1% die that's 682 thousand. Compare that to your 30 thousand with flu, in a population not isolating/distancing, no PPE and with vaccines for the elderly and vulnerable Maybe she just doesn't want an unnecessary 1% risk for her mum

Rachael H @Rachae 51206431 4 t

It's actually 99.8% don t think after the vulnerable and over 70's have been vaccinated the rest of the popu ation should be forced after a t's a new vaccine with no knowledge of long term side effects Which is why there is zero ndemnity You need to follow more than 3 MSM

Bob Swanage @BobSwanage 5 m n

You need to understand that this vaccine wasn t invented overnight Are you really that dumb to think that And I quoted your figure of 99% not mine. You do as you please, don't moan on twitter when your daughter thinks you're as naive as the rest of the covidiots

I'm beginning to think the reason advocates of domestic #VaccinePassports are so desperate to see them implemented is because of their desire to virtue signal. How else would they remind everyone on a daily basis that they've been vaccinated?

Really? An apology? Goodness me.

The Government has suspended key human rights such as right to association and assembly, right to movement within the state you reside. You may say that's justified. I don't. And I'm not bothered to have the same debate 1k times per day. Ok?

If legality is your standard for what's right, reasonable & just then a glance at 20thC history should give you pause for thought.

We may have differing standards for what is humane, but destroying the mental health of millions plus 4m cancer scans cancelled doesn't do it for me

So delighted to welcome @AnasSarwar as the new leader of the Scottish Labour Party. The first BAME leader of any political party elected on a promise to heal our many divisions and take Scotland forwards. This is a new chapter in the history of Scottish Labour 🌹

Nearly 2 MILLION people aged 60–63 in England will be invited to book a COVID jab as we continue to roll out the vaccine.

We're making great strides in protecting our population from this virus – let's not blow it now.

Stay at home. Protect the NHS. Save lives.

Pretty sure there has been a fair amount of research demonstrating that impressionable people are likely to believe something to be true if a man in a lab coat insists, counter to the reality they see with their own eyes.

Remember that vaccine efficacy was measured under conditions of masks and social distancing

Efficacy is the sum of biological protection of the vaccine and protection resulting from public behavior. If behavior changes, efficacy will likely decline, perhaps even significantly

Vaccine passports are not inevitable. They (Blair & the others pushing them) want you to think they're inevitable in order to drive up vaccination rates to the highest possible levels (90%+) which would then make vaccination passports inevitable. The whole thing's a psy op.

Families and businesses need certainty. This Budget must deliver a plan to:

🛡️ Protect jobs and businesses while the vaccine is being rolled out.

🤞 Secure the recovery as we emerge from the crisis.

🧱 Lay the foundations so we can rebuild a better, more secure economy.

The alternative is one of the smaller parties or not voting at all. Or, if like me, you are hell bent on destroying the Tory party (the only party I've voted for in GEs) then you might even consider helping their demise along.

Vote for a local indy. That's the best we can do really. We need a populist style party in the vein of UKIP/BPUK who will campaign on the single issue of lockdowns / personal freedom. The main parties have given it all away to govt without any consideration at all.

I'm just going to put this here today for the benefit of all those with low IQ who stumble across this tweet.

"bUt tHe nUmBeRs aRe cOmiNg dOwN"

That's what happens with viral outbreaks. Like in Sweden with no lockdown.

Unpaid carers really are the unsung heroes of this pandemic, particularly all of the young unpaid carers who are still children themselves

The government must support these young people who are sacrificing so much to care for their loved ones

Such a weird tweet. Your stance until now is in no way compatible with the idea that getting ‘back to normal life’ is contingent on receiving a vaccine.
